Each leader pledged full support to the ILWU as it continues negotiations with Pacific Maritime Association, and also noted the bonds of solidarity with Docker Unions around the world is growing stronger and more powerful.

"We are part of a very unique industry where, no matter where you are in the world, we work for the same employers, the same ocean carriers, and I think that uniqueness is what allows us to have such a strong international dockers movement," said IDC General Coordinator Daggett.

His comments were echoed by ITF President Paddy Crumlin who noted: "Dockworkers around the world have a lot in common. Mostly, we have these very, very long shared history of tried union effectiveness and militancy."

ILWU Canadian National President Ashton captured the classic ILWU theme

"An Injury To One Is An Injury to All," when he emphasized: "Your struggle is our struggle, your fight is our fight. And there's a war going on. It's a war between classes, and this is just one small battle in that war. We'll be victorious in this battle and be victorious in the next battles to come. Cause we've got your back, and we up North know that you have our backs".

NEW ZEALAND DOCKERS JOIN THE IDC

The New Zealand Maritime Union (MUNZ), representing the 13 active ports in New Zealand and bringing 2,290 new members to the IDC.

Undoubtedly an excellent news that confirms the expansion of the IDC in the Oceania zone, fruit of the great work of our delegates.

Brothers and Sisters of the Maritime Union of New Zealand, welcome to the IDC family. With you, we are stronger!

CHILEAN PRESIDENT GABRIEL BORIC RECEIVES A DELEGATION OF CHILEAN DOCKERS AND THE IDC

On July 21, representatives of the Chilean Port Union and the International Dockworkers' Council (IDC), including the Coordinator of the Latin American Zone, the Chilean César Luna, and the International Labor Coordinator, Jordi Aragunde, among others, met at the Palacio de la Moneda, seat of government, with the President of the Republic of Chile, Gabriel Boric, the Minister of Transport, Juan Carlos Muñoz, and several advisors.

During the meeting, the present and future of the port sector in Chile was presented and discussed, through a document delivered and subsequently signed by President Boric, in which the main problems were presented.

Thursday's meeting resulted in a commitment by the Government on four key points for the sector:

- The development of a tripartite table, where Government, companies and workers have the same voice for the development of a new General Ports Law.
- To elaborate a Law that regulates port activity and promotes its development.
- Enact a law regulating national cabotage before the end of this year.
- To activate City-Port commissions creating an economic-social link between port activity and society.

From the meeting it was agreed that all these proposals will be taken as a matter of urgency.
